Local Rumpke driver helps police nab two juvenile carjackers

4-year-old child in car slept through the incident unharmed

When Rumpke driver Jackie Thomas started out on his regular route on July 18 in the Ft. Wright area, he had no idea that he would help solve a crime. But that's just what he did, ensuring the arrest of two kidnappers around 6 a.m.

Thomas was servicing an account when two very sweaty young men approached his truck around 5:30 a.m. asking to use his cell phone. "They were nervous acting," Thomas said. "I knew something wasn't right." He let the two young men use his phone, he listened to the calls, and closely observed the direction the young men went. He then called 9-1-1.

Several police agencies, a canine unit and the Hamilton County Sheriff's helicopter joined in the search. A few minutes later, Fort Wright police officers surrounded Thomas' truck. Thomas supplied descriptions for the men, the phone numbers they called and an official statement. The information he provided led the police to the two minors they had been searching for since 1 a.m.

The teens had stolen a SUV from a Speedway. News sources said that Kelly Garrett had been driving around trying to get her four-year-old daughter to sleep. She pulled into the Speedway lot and went inside asking the clerk to watch her vehicle. It didn't take but a couple of minutes and the two juvenile were in the vehicle and gone.

Garrett had left her cell phone in the vehicle and it pinged off a tower in Fort Mitchell. Police believe that when the boys discovered the little girl in the back seat, the two abandoned the car at the Kroger store lot and were attempting to escape on foot.

The child slept through everything.

Thomas provided the police with the information that was needed to find the teens.

The two are facing charges of theft and kidnapping in the Kenton County Court.

Thomas has worked as a Rumpke front load driver for 10 years. "I've seen many things over the years, some things you even wish you hadn't seen, but you always try to do the right thing and help," said Thomas.

Court discusses Bluegrass Pipeline Flood insurance premiums to increase

By Roger McKinney, Reporter

The Pendleton County Fiscal Court talked about the proposed Bluegrass Pipeline, which would transport liquid natural gas from the Northeast to the Gulf of Mexico. The pipeline would pass through Pendleton County. The Franklin County Fiscal Court recently passed a resolution opposing the project. Citizens are concerned about leaks, fires, explosions, contamination of ground water and damage to the atmosphere. Pendleton County Judge/Executive Henry Bertram said that a public hearing would be scheduled to fully discuss the issue. And the judge stated that the court was adamant about the quality of the public hearing, "We want to be certain that all our facts are straight and that everyone is on the same page. Accurate information is essential to making good decisions regarding the pipeline. We want our citizens to be well informed."

Judge Bertram informed the court that National Flood Insurance premiums are to increase significantly in 2013-2014. He said representatives from FEMA would explain the rise in cost to the general public.

Other business conducted by the Pendleton County Fiscal Court in the July 23, 2013 meeting:

- Approved a motion to lease office space in the old courthouse to the Ambulance District.
- Approved contract employing Community Development Director Bill Mitchell.
- Approved a motion to bid out the construction and installation of memorial benches in the old courthouse's Veterans Park.
- Gave a first reading to an ordinance restricting the operation of Off the Road ATVs after sundown in residential areas.
- Approved a resolution allowing Judge Bertram to sign a Flex Fund Agreement with Rural and Municipal Aid.
- Approved the State Contract purchase of 2005 Ford Escape for use by the Pendleton County Planning and Zoning Department at a cost of $2,900.

Back Yonder

By Marvin Sullivan

"The Honeymoon"

Today, July 30, 2013, will mark my 47th wedding anniversary. In some respects it seems like an eternity, but on the other hand it seems just like yesterday. Some folks get married much younger than 21 years, but for us the age seemed just right.

We were married at the Oakland Christian Church on July 30, 1966. About the only thing I remember about the ceremony was when Brother Eudell Hall said "If anyone objects let him speak now or forever hold his peace." I remember thinking, "Wonder if anyone will say anything?"

In today's marriage ceremonies they make the preacher leave out the part about objections and also the part about loving and obeying till death do us part, because they have doubts that the union will last very long.

We didn't have enough money to take a honeymoon like young couples today who go on fantastic trips to far off islands and resorts. We had rented an upstairs apartment on Maple Avenue in Falmouth. It was furnished with a refrigerator and stove and the cost was $45 a month. It was not fancy, but we could not afford anything else and didn't know any better.

I was driving a truck for Griffin Industries at the time and the tough old meat cutters at the butcher shops where I stopped would tease me and make crude jokes about my getting married. (I can't reveal some of the remarks they made).

One mild remark they made was, "Marvin, take notice, your honeymoon night will be one of the most beautiful nights of your life! Don't let it get by unnoticed!" I took them serious and never forgot what they said when I was making my wedding plans.

After the wedding, we had a reception at the church. The good ladies of the church made cakes and punch and we opened our gifts. When the reception ended, we sneaked to our apartment on Maple Avenue and hid my car in the old garage, because we thought some of our friends would try to pull some tricks.

We nervously climbed to our apartment. To tell you the truth, I was very nervous, green, and quite insecure. Sandy entered the bathroom to freshen up. After a while she came to the dimly lit bedroom and got under the covers.

She looked over the covers to see what I was doing. Our bedroom had a large window that looked toward where the St. Elizabeth Care Unit is today. I had retrieved one of the chairs from the kitchen and had taken a seat. I opened the shades and was looking out.

She commented, "Marvin, what in the world are you doing?"

I replied, "Those guys at the butcher shop said that this would be one of the most beautiful nights of my life and I don't want to miss a single minute of it!"

She breathed a big sigh of exasperation and I remember her saying, "Boy have I got a lot to teach HIM!"

The next day we went to the Capitol Theatre in Cincinnati to see Julie Andrews in the "Sound Of Music." I still think this movie is the greatest of all times. On our way home we stopped at the Dairy Queen in Falmouth for our "Honey-moon Dinner." This honeymoon day was just as valuable as if we had dined at one of the most luxurious restaurants in New York City.

The years have been good. We have had many trials and tribulations, but the rewards have been greater. I thank the Lord each day for her, and I feel our love grows stronger as we grow older.

I have big plans for our 47th celebration night. I am going to try to relive and do exactly what I did 47 years ago! I want to be young! I want to be energetic! I want to be romantic and sexy!

We have a big bedroom window! We have a big reclining chair! It is supposed to be beautiful night with a full moon! I can't miss a single moment!

Mastering the art of healthy relationships

Let's face it, relationships can be tough and some even debilitating. Although relationships are a fundamental aspect of the human experience, our dealings with friends, family members, significant others, co-workers and superiors are often riddled with strife and consternation. In fact, research by Cornell University estimates that there will be a whopping one million divorces in the United States in 2013, alone. Beyond marital challenges, difficult personal and workplace relationships are far more than a nuisance, as they can cause anxiety, burnout, clinical depression and even physical illness. What's more, highly toxic workplace affiliations can undermine your professional success and threaten your livelihood at large.

The bottom line is this: the right relationships can propel you to great heights of achievement; the wrong ones will tether you to mediocrity and mire you in disappointment. With this in mind, in striving for rewarding connections with others, it's essential to evaluate relationships intelligently: What makes a great relationship? How do you keep a relationship great? What are the warning signs of trouble? While it's so very easy to blame the other person in a distressed relationship, it's far more effective to consider and assess the situation objectively and build your Relational IQ - the mindset that helps us to better understand and control our personal and professional relationships to maximize happiness and realize life-changing success.

Relationships are an art, and most of us lack the skill and mastery to help break—or all together avoid—destructive patterns, disrespect, and deception. Far too many people also lack the ability to have productive connections with others—those that help you achieve goals, sharpen your mind, and generally uplift and enrich your life. There are, in fact, fundamental principles for living and interacting with others in the complex and ever-changing dynamics of today's culture that, if adhered to, can best assure relational success in all aspects of life—at home, in social circles, and in business. Choose not to and suffer the consequences. Naysayers might ask, "Is it really possible to master relationships?" The answer is an unequivocal "yes"—if you're willing to learn skills and proactively apply tactical techniques, that is.

To help kick-start your Relational IQ so that you can better navigate, and begin to master, your own personal and professional affiliations, here are 10 pitfalls to avoid when seeking a meaningful and genuine relationship that will result in a richer, more fulfilling life:

Don't hide: While secret identities might be fun in the movies, a person who harbors secrets, and hides their fears, and beliefs from others will never be able to enjoy an authentic relationship. Being real with others and even making yourself vulnerable from time to time can foster tremendous emotional connections, including all-important trust, and forge unbreakable bonds.

Don't tweak the truth. Studies show that 10-30% of applicants admit to "tweaking" their resumes—that's certainly no way to start an engagement with a new employer. Whether at work or at home, lying—even small white lies—will do nothing but undermine and compromise any relationship. Instead, even slightly altering the truth is one of the most destructive forces that can permanently damage a personal or professional relationship.

Don't rush and miss critical red flags. Understand that a relationship is a journey with changes in direction, twists and turns, and roadblocks along the way. It's imperative to pass through certain experiences and navigate through difficulties to learn from these situations and create a healthy outcome. Resist the desire to take shortcuts or race through certain aspects of a relationship. Even if it is painful or boring, embrace it, knowing that it offers a healthy purpose for the big picture of a relationship.

Don't force it. There's an old R&B lyric that says, "If it don't fit, don't force it." Despite the poor grammar, it is quite insightful in its simplicity. Relationships that create positive synergy through mutual respect and shared values are worth your investment.

Don't repeat the past. The past should not define a person, and there is no reason to keep looking back. While previous events and actions might be a life lesson, the nature of every journey is to move forward. Don't repeat those actions that did not produce the intended results; instead, focus on new choices that will effect a more desirable outcome.

Don't be a "taker." All relationships involve give and take, so it is important to recognize when each relationship could use more of a giving spirit. When we think about what we can do for others instead of what they can do for us, we get to the very heart of healthy, successful interactions. In a strong relationship, both people willingly give, far more than they take.

Don't stay in an unhealthy relationship. Unfortunately, sometimes we make a poor choice and enter into relationships that will never be healthy no matter what actions are taken. Part of Relational IQ is knowing when and how to end a toxic relationship. If someone is not able to accept a change in the status or direction, is not loyal and

Private loans bridge gap between college costs, student aid

Many sources of financial aid are available to help college-bound students pay higher education expenses, including federal and state grants, scholarships and Federal Stafford and PLUS Loans. In addition, merit-based scholarships and need-based grants are often available at the local level, according to the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA).

All of these programs may help ease the burden of paying for college. However, sometimes these sources are not enough to cover all the costs. When that happens, parents and students may take advantage of private student loans, also called alternative loans.

The interest rate on private loans will largely depend on the borrower's credit rating, so students and parents may have to pay higher interest rates than they would on federal student loans. In addition, many lenders require students to have a cosigner, and some require the college to certify that the student needs the loan.

Students and parents are encouraged to do research before committing to any loan. They should compare the loans offered by various lenders to find the best possible deal.

KHEAA is the state agency that administers Kentucky's student aid programs, including the Kentucky Educational Excellence Scholarship (KEES).

Kenny Speakes and the Oakland Christian Church Revival

Janice and I crossed over the beautiful new bridge in Falmouth and went east on Highway 22, turning toward the river at Logan's Lumber. We were headed to Oakland to hear Kenny Speakes. The area brought back many memories, most of them pleasant. We passed where Lonny Browning had lived when he was Chairman of the Pendleton County Board of Education. We turned right onto Milford Road and approached Oakland where we had attended the funeral of Lonny, and Becky Fogle had sung so magnificently, personages who loomed now larger than life and better than what we thought when they were alive.

The church building was full when we arrived and an usher showed us where there were still two seats, and we settled in by Ms. Hazel Ramsey and Ms. Clara Holmes. Sisters whose history runs deep in Oakland.

Pastor Flaughter of Oakland said that if we don't like our President we should pray for him any- way, because we are commanded to do so, and work toward getting a better one. We live in a great nation, he said, the greatest that has ever existed; we have lots of problems; many that cause us to want to give up and retreat, but that is not the answer and we stood and sang "God bless America!"

Kenny Speakes then presented a sermon in song. Kenny is the son-in-law of Wayne Smith who founded Southland Christian Church in Lexington. A gifted musician and comedian, he made some comments that were similar to what I wrote about in last week's issue concerning same sex marriage.

He said that America is under the Judgment of God for our riotous living, that 911 was a wake-up call, that the bombing of the twin towers was predicted in Biblical prophecy as well as the erection of an Islam mosque on their ruins. He further stated: we are being primed for a currency default; that overnight we could lose everything we possess; a new constitution could be enacted; Sharia law instituted and a dictator installed. He called on Christians everywhere to humble themselves and pray prayers of repentance and beg God's mercy.

This writer goes further: When we consider that we have killed over 50 million babies since 1973, scuttled biblical marriage, and treat our dogs better than our children; when we have laid up our treasures here on earth and ignored our Heavenly Father, perhaps we should sing, "God have mercy on America!"

Then, Kenny sang, "The Old Lighthouse," and chill bumps rose on the back of my neck. I observed a lady near me whose lips were quivering, as a tear welled in the corner of her eye. I thought, "There may be some glimmer of hope for us..... if we will humble ourselves and repent and return to our Lord!"

The Pastor dismissed us but the crowd seemed to linger, like this was something special, something Heavenly and they wanted to caress it as long as they could....."

Fire doesn't discriminate - protect yourself

To the Editor,

A mother and her four children aged from 6 years to 16 years were killed in a house in Bracken County, Kentucky on Saturday, July 13th. Firefighters bravely attempted to knock down the flames and rescue the family, but were only able to rescue the father who is still in critical condition. Two family members were able to escape unharmed.

Kentucky has been no stranger to this type of fire related devastation in 2013. Four children aged 5, 4, 2 and six months and their father tragically lost their lives in a fire in Jonancy, Kentucky, on January 8th. Similarly, on March 9th five children, a pregnant woman and her fiancé all lost their lives in a fire in Gray, Kentucky. The children were aged from 10 months to 3 years, and two of the children were family friends of the residents. The effects of tragedies like these often resonate with a community long after the smoke clears.

Fire does not discriminate and can strike at any time and in any type of home, but working smoke detectors and fire sprinklers can help to avoid potential injuries and tragedies from occurring. Properly installed and maintained fire sprinklers control and typically extinguish a fire before the fire department even arrives on the scene. More importantly, the presence of fire sprinklers mitigates the risk to individuals affected by the blaze, including firefighters and other first responders.

I urge you to check the batteries in your smoke alarms, educate yourself on the current fire protection requirements in your own city and state, and learn how to protect yourself, your loved ones and your community from the ravages of fire. Our thoughts and prayers are with the victims and their family during this tragedy.

Sincerely,

One year later, landmark prescription drug bill shows huge impact

Overdose deaths are down; numbers of prescriptions for commonly abused drugs have dropped; 20 pain clinics shut down since House Bill 1 took effect

One year after landmark legislation aimed at curbing prescription drug abuse took effect, Governor Steve Beshear credited the bill with closing non-compliant pain management clinics and reducing the number of prescriptions for heavily-abused controlled substances.

Plus, for the first time in a decade, the number of deaths blamed on prescription overdoses has declined.

House Bill 1 (HB1), signed into law by Gov. Beshear last spring, included multiple elements to prevent the abuse and diversion of prescription drugs and to enhance law enforcement's tools to investigate illegal prescribing practices.

"A year ago, Kentucky was at a breaking point. Families and communities splintered by prescription drug abuse were crying for help, and HB1 provided key tools to drive out illegal pill mills, curb doctor shopping and decrease unnecessary prescribing," said Gov. Beshear. "The impact of this bill can't be measured just in the numbers of pills we've kept off the streets. This bill, I believe, has literally saved lives in Kentucky."

"As I have said before, reducing drug abuse is an ever-changing battle, but it's undeniable that House Bill 1 has saved lives as we look back over the last year," said House Speaker Greg Stumbo. "I'm proud of the results, and the fact that other states are following our lead. Our goal now is to build on these gains and to improve access to treatment, so that abusers can truly escape this deadly cycle once and for all."

"HB1 was remarkable on two fronts: it was good policy that was developed in a strongly bipartisan manner that significantly reduced drug diversion and improper and illegal use of prescription drugs," said Senate President Robert Stivers.

"There is no doubt in my mind that the passage of House Bill 1 saved lives in Kentucky. It's reversing the downward spiral of prescription drug addiction that's afflicted this state for more than a decade. For the first time, according to the most recent report from the U.S. Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, Kentucky is below the national average when it comes to prescription drug abuse. Now we need to work together across party lines to help increase funding for treatment," said Attorney General Jack Conway.

HB1 Impact: Pain Clinics Shut Down

One of the major components of HB1 is the requirement that pain management facilities be owned by a licensed medical provider. Since the law was passed, 20 non-physician owned pain management facilities have closed. Cabinet for Health and Family Services (CHFS) has issued cease and desist letters to another four pain management facilities operating outside the scope of state regulations.

"Prescription drug abuse had reached epidemic levels in Kentucky and it was clear more needed to be done to help identify and stop the proliferation of these so-called pill mills," said CHFS Secretary Audrey Tayse Haynes. "Since the passage of HB1, we've seen many facilities voluntarily close and have been able to better identify clinics that should not have been operating in the state of Kentucky. This measure is really making a difference in terms of stamping out prescription drug abuse in our state."

Prescription overdose deaths down for first time in a decade

For the first time in a decade, Kentucky overdose deaths declined in 2012, according to a report issued this week by the Office of Drug Control Policy.

Of the 1,004 overdose fatalities in 2012, 888 were found to be unintentional, 59 were suicides and 57 remain undetermined, according to the report. In 2011, there were 1,023 overdose deaths in Kentucky.

The data, contained in the 2012 Overdose Fatality Report, was compiled from the Kentucky Medical Examiner's Office, the Kentucky Injury Prevention and Research Council and the Kentucky Office of Vital Statistics. The report was mandated under a provision in HB1.

Alprazolam (Xanax) remained the most-detected controlled substance in overdose deaths, present in 41 percent of all autopsied cases. Morphine was found in 32 percent of autopsies, followed by hydrocodone at 26 percent and oxycodone at 24 percent.

"Nineteen fewer families suffered the pain of a preventable death in 2012 as compared to 2011. Hopefully this downward trend will continue as the full impact of HB 1 continues to develop," said Van Ingram, executive director for the Kentucky Office of Drug Control Policy.

Autopsied overdose deaths attributed to the use of heroin increased 550 percent over the previous year, from 22 in 2011 to 143 cases in 2012.

Thousands of medical providers using prescription tracking system

HB1 required prescribers to register with the Kentucky All Schedule

Prescription Electronic Reporting system (KASPER), which tracks controlled substances dispensed in Kentucky.

In 2011, before HB1, KASPER had 7,545 account holders. Now, more than 24,000 medical providers which are authorized to prescribe or dispense controlled substances by the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency (DEA) are registered KASPER users.

Regulations set by the medical professional licensure boards mandate that licensees use the KASPER system before prescribing many controlled substances. As a result, the number of reports requested through KASPER has more than tripled from almost 811,000 in 2011 to nearly 2.7 million in 2012. Each weekday, providers request approximately 17,600 reports. "The more providers use KASPER, the more effective the system becomes," said CHFS Inspector General Mary Reindle Begley. "We've gone from using the monitoring system whenever abuse was suspected, to proactively using the system when a prescription for a controlled substance is going to be issued. Significant changes in prescribing trends have resulted, namely the reduction in the number of some of our most heavily abused substances."

Big reductions in prescriptions for most-abused drugs

After a year of more robust reporting and tracking, KASPER shows that prescribing rates for hydrocodone, oxycodone and alprazolam have decreased, compared to a prior decade of annual increases.

Records indicate prescription levels for some controlled substances, such as hydrocodone and oxycodone, have declined significantly. For example, from August 2011 to May 2012, 198 million doses of hydrocodone were dispensed in Kentucky. That number declined 9.5 percent during the comparable post-HB1 period of August 2012 to May 2013, dropping to 179 million doses.

From August 2011 to May 2012, 72 million doses of oxycodone were dispensed in the state. However, one year later, that number had declined by 10.5 percent to 64 million doses.

"Seeing the increase in users and reports requested – coupled with the decline in the amount of controlled substances dispensed – demonstrates how significant HB1 has been," said Begley.

More Investigations, License Suspensions of Medical Providers

HB1 requires that when a complaint about inappropriate prescribing abuse is lodged with any of several investigative agencies – the Attorney General, Kentucky State Police (KSP), CHFS, or any of the professional licensure boards – that complaint must be shared with the remaining agencies. A Memorandum of Understanding between these agencies facilitates the distribution and use of the information for administrative and law enforcement purposes.

In 2011, KBML disciplined 53 physicians for prescribing violations.

In the last 12 months, KBML has taken 78 disciplinary actions against 64 physicians for prescribing violations.

Those actions include 13 emergency orders of license suspension and four emergency restrictions. Another 22 physicians agreed to indefinite restriction of their prescribing authority, and five more surrendered their licenses rather than have them revoked.

"Thanks to HB1, our board was able to accelerate its reviews of prescribing complaints and take action against providers who violate proper procedures," said Dr. Preston Nunneley, KBML board chair. "The immediate cross-agency investigations help protect patients as well as providers. The Board considers violations involving controlled substances to be very serious, and we will continue to act quickly to protect Kentuckians."

UK to study HB1's effectiveness

CHFS has contracted with the University of Kentucky to evaluate the effectiveness of HB1. Over the next 12 months, university researchers will review KASPER statistics, surveying providers and other stakeholders, and measuring the impact of the legislation.

The goal of the study is to document an evaluation of the impact of the legislation on prescription drug abuse, to develop recommendations that will assist state officials and legislators to improve the effectiveness of the legislation and to mitigate identified unintentional consequences.

Earthquake confirmed along Mason-Bracken line

By Wendy Mitchell,
The Ledger Independent

Officials at the Kentucky Geological Survey office in Lexington confirmed on Wednesday, July 25 that a 2.9 magnitude earthquake struck the Mason County area.

Last Tuesday's earthquake was centered near Emmons Lane, west of Minerva; the second incident since Sunday.

Passing, apparently unnoticed, by residents was a 2.4 earthquake which struck the same area on Sunday, officials said.

A Bracken County 911 Dispatch office security video showing the tremble of a tree in the courtyard of the courthouse set the time rumbling began at about 10:42 a.m., Tuesday.

KGS officials listed the quake as registering at a real time seismograph station in Flemingsburg at 11:04 a.m.

Map coordinates 38.710 North, and 83.947 West near the epicenter bordering Bracken County were triangulated, using a computer program, first, P-wave, and second, S-wave indicators, along with time and location of reports, said N. Seth Carpenter, KGS spokesperson.

The quake was at a depth of 3.6 miles, he said.

The video shows a lone tree suddenly shaking, then going back to being still. It can be viewed on The Ledger Independent's Facebook page and on Twitter.

"That is a very interesting piece of information for our research of what happens during seismic activity," said Thomas Sparks, KGS geologist.

On the seismograph reading, definite activity was noted around 11 a.m. with large black lines appearing as the ground shook.

"It is a classic earthquake signature," said Sparks.

No damage was reported though incidents of small objects rattling across surfaces were reported.

"I was amazed, given the activity reported in Bracken County that our dispatchers in Mason County did not receive any calls about it," said Dr. Greg Taylor, Mason County Emergency assistant manager.

A loud noise which some reported as a boom, while others said sounded like a crash, accompanied the shake.

"Those reports are fairly common," Sparks said.

According to Carpenter, an explanation of the noise is difficult.

"It's a mystery," Carpenter said. "We don't understand it, other than it is related to the rock breaking in the rupture of the earth."

Seismic activity was reported from near Oakland Road in Bracken County at the Robertson County line to Ripley, Ohio, and in Augusta, Minerva and Germantown.

Seismic activity is no stranger to the region. In 2011, a quake centered in Virginia was felt in the area. Another in Perry County in Nov. 10, 2012, was felt in the region as well, Carpenter said.

In 1988 there was a 4.6 magnitude earthquake at Sharpsburg, the same area of a 1980 quake that struck the region, damaging buildings in Maysville, said Carpenter.

Carpenter asked for anyone feeling earth tremors in Kentucky to contact KGS at www.uky.edu/KGS.

Arson is cause of fire that destroyed old Deming School

By Ben Hyatt

Arson is being listed as the cause of a fire that destroyed most of the former Deming School in Robertson County.

Several agencies including Kentucky State Police Arson Investigation, Robertson County Sheriff's Department and Mount Oliver Police Department are joining to bring justice to the person(s) responsible for a fire that caused a devastating fire at the former K-12 Deming School on July 17.

According to an article by the Maysville Ledger Independent, flames engulfed a major portion of the 86-year-old school around 10 p.m.

Several volunteer firefighters from neighboring counties including Harrison County, made the drive to help control the flames.

The school, which has been vacant since the district opened its newly built school on Jan. 24, is now being reduced to large piles of bricks and metal beams as the portion of the building still standing is being demolished.

Robertson County Superintendent Chuck Brown said that the community is still in a state of shock from the horrific scene.

"We are all extremely upset and still in disbelief," said Brown. "It was like a death of a family member or very close friend. Everyone is wanting justice."

Plans were in the works for demolition of the school in order to establish a park on the site with a monument honoring the school.

"It was going to be taken down anyway, but we didn't want to see it be done like this," said Brown.

According to Kentucky State Police public affairs officer, Trooper David Jones, no suspects have been named at this time.

"We have some people that we are interested in speaking with about the fire, but no one has been named a suspect yet," said Jones.

Underground pipeline causes heated discussions

By Greg Kocher

Discussion is heating up in Central Kentucky over a proposed underground pipeline that will transport flammable natural gas liquids from oil shale drilling zones in Pennsylvania through the region.

Representatives of Williams Co. and Boardwalk Pipeline Partners, the two companies that are partners in the project, have scheduled meetings with county fiscal courts to answer questions.

Woodford County Judge-Executive John Coyle said he has heard a variety of questions from residents about the pipeline, which would cut across the northern tier of that kiteshaped county.

"There is a lot of concern about the project," Coyle said. People want to know "if an accident happens and there's a break in the line, what the effects would be to the water and the soil and the cattle and the people."

Basically people want to know "if the benefits are going to outweigh the risks," Coyle said.

More than 20 people, including some from Anderson, Scott, Franklin and Nelson counties, met in Versailles to discuss the pipeline.

"We are trying to make sure that there are meetings held in each of the counties affected so that people can come and ask questions and learn about the kinds of questions they need to have answered," said Lori Garkovich, a Woodford County resident who attended the Versailles meeting.

She said about 100 people attended a meeting in Springfield sponsored by a group called New Pioneers for a Sustainable Future.

Meanwhile, a group called Bluegrass Pipeline Blockade has put up a Facebook page opposing the project. Kentucky Waterways Alliance, Kentuckians for the Commonwealth and the Kentucky Resources Council are working to inform the landowners about their rights in relation to easements and pipeline safety.

"A pipeline rupture has a low probability of occurrence, but it has a very high probability of damage if it does occur," Garkovich said. "If you look at federal data on accidents per mile, these pipelines that carry hazardous liquids represent the smallest amount of pipeline miles, but over half of all the incidents."

Preliminary routes for the pipeline are subject to change, but as proposed now it would enter Kentucky in Bracken County in Northern Kentucky, then head southwest through Pendleton, Grant, Harrison, Owen, Scott, Franklin, Woodford and Anderson counties. From there it would head west and northwest through Nelson, LaRue, Hardin and Breckinridge counties.

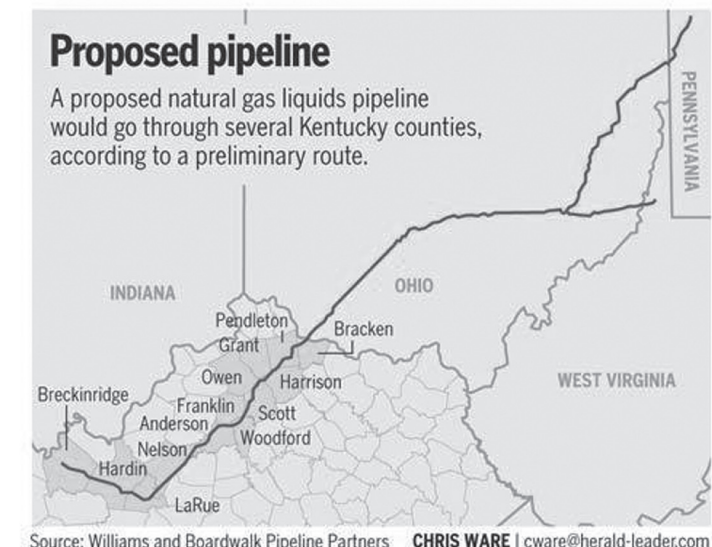

In Breckinridge County, the pipeline would connect with an existing Texas Gas Transmission line in Hardinsburg. From that point to Eunice, La., a portion of the Texas Gas line would be converted from natural gas service to natural gas liquids service. In Louisiana, the partners in the pipeline plan to build a new fractionation plant and expand liquid storage facilities for the increased supply.

The natural gas used to generate electricity or to heat homes is mostly methane. But natural gas at the well site may include other hydrocarbons, such as ethane, propane, butane, isobutane and pentanes. Those hydrocarbons are called natural gas liquids or NGLs.

Each has its own unique properties that make it suited to a specific use. Butane is used in cigarette lighters, while propane is used in backyard grills and home heating systems.

Petrochemical plants are the largest consumers of these NGLs, particularly ethane, which is used in the manufacture of plastics.

Processing facilities remove NGLs so they can be used separately. The NGLs are transported by pipeline under pressure in a liquid state. While NGLs can be transported by truck and rail, underground pipelines "are a safer and more efficient alternative," according to Williams Co. and Boardwalk Pipeline Partners.

Williams and Boardwalk expect that the planned pipeline would be put into service in 2015, assuming all the required approvals are met.

The companies seek 50-foot permanent easement plus another 50-foot temporary easement for construction equipment, but some property owners wonder whether the permanent easement leaves enough room for a second pipeline.

Rob Hawksworth, a Williams Co. representative, told a Nelson County audience on June 18 that the number of pipelines depends on what the landowner allows. But for now, the companies are seeking easements for only one pipeline, he said.

The pipeline project must obtain permits from numerous federal and state regulatory bodies, including the Kentucky Department of Environmental Protection, Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Department of Parks and the Kentucky Heritage Council, plus their counterparts in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio.

But the role of the Kentucky agencies is "fairly limited," said Tom FitzGerald, an attorney for the Kentucky Resources Council, an environmental-advocacy group.

The Kentucky Public Service Commission has no authority over the pipeline, said Andrew Melnykovich, spokesman for the agency.

"It's a liquids pipeline, which we don't have authority over, and it's interstate, so we don't have authority over it because of that, either," Melnykovich said.

FitzGerald, however, said it is an "open question" whether the PSC has siting authority. "PSC believes it does not have siting authority, so I have asked them for an opinion in that regard," he said. "If you look at the definition of 'utility' under the Public Service Commission statute, 'utility' includes any entity that owns, controls, operates or manages a facility used for the 'transporting or conveying gas, crude oil or other fuel substance by pipeline, to or for the public for compensation.'"

If the commission contends that the transport of natural gas liquids is not for public service because the liquids are going to an entity for processing, that would raise the question of whether the venture partners have condemnation authority. Landowners have wondered whether eminent domain, the power to take private property for a public use, applies here.

"If they're not a regulated facility, then it is highly questionable whether under Kentucky law they have the right to condemn," FitzGerald said. "The right to condemn is contained in the statute that regulates utilities. And if they're not a utility, then they cannot have a power to condemn. Conversely, if they are a utility, they are obligated to get a certificate of need and convenience from the state before they begin any activity associated with the construction of the pipeline."

That's an issue that might have to be resolved in court, FitzGerald said.

The federal agencies involved include the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the National Park Service, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Federal Aviation Administration.

FitzGerald said the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers should require an environmental impact statement, which would take at least a year.

The pipeline companies counter that the proposed pipeline "will be inspected, tested, and monitored to ensure its integrity will meet or exceed all applicable state and federal safety standards."

Natural gas pipelines are regulated by the U.S. Department of Transportation's Office of Pipeline Safety, which imposes construction and operations standards.

But FitzGerald and others point to an NGLs pipeline leak in Parachute, Colo., in which 241 barrels of natural gas liquids entered the soil undetected for two weeks. Investigators called the problem with the line a "seep." Such a leak or seep in Kentucky could pollute underground water supplies, given the karst topography that honeycombs limestone formations under much of the region.

Kentucky already has many underground natural gas pipelines.

"The difference is that when those pipelines were proposed, they went through an advanced review process," FitzGerald said. "And that advanced review process included the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission opening a case on whether the pipeline was needed, and after 1970, that would have included an environmental impact statement and would have included an opportunity for the public to review the proposed siting and that it was safe as can be."

"None of that happens with an NGLs pipeline because it is regulated by the Interstate Commerce Act rather than the Natural Gas Act," FitzGerald said. That's why the Corps of Engineers should seek an environmental impact statement, he says.

The surveying of properties apparently has begun in some counties, according to reports that Garkovich and FitzGerald have received. Landowners do not have to allow surveyors onto their land, FitzGerald said. Anderson County landowner Dennis Monohan said he turned away a surveyor who sought access to his 180-acre farm.

"I have no interest in any more easements on my farm," Monohan said. "I mean, I've got a power line, a railroad in the back, a gas line. There are so many rights of way. Why don't these people get together and run things down one right of way?"

That's what the companies are trying to do by routing the pipeline on land where there are already utility-easement corridors, Hawksworth told the Nelson County audience. But Monohan said the line would bisect his farm with no regard to existing easements.

In any case, with the race to send natural gas liquids to the Gulf of Mexico, other pipelines are being proposed. "We could end up with more of these pipelines in Kentucky because we have companies competing with each other to provide the service of transportation," FitzGerald said.

History of Pendleton County by Emma McClanahan Thompson

This history of Pendleton County was written by Emma McClanahan Thompson in 1934 and was printed in several editions of The Falmouth Outlook beginning July 5, 1988.

Part III: Mineral Resources

Pendleton County is not situated in any outstanding mineral region. As has already been said Pendleton is noted for its agricultural enterprises and not for its mineral resources as some of the other counties of the state.

The structural attitude of Pendleton County is a monocline dipping to the northeast from a medical position on the north-eastern flank of the Lexington Dome of the Cincinnati Arch. Hard rocks consist of sequence of Ordovician limestones, shaley limestones and shales with occasional thin limestones, the principal formation a the outcrop being Eden Shale in the hilllands. Fluvia tile sands, gravels and clays of the Pleistocene and the Recent Age are found, composing the flood plains of the Licking River, the lower waters of Grassy Creek and other adjacent tributaries.

The principal mineral resources in limestone which is found in inexhaustible quantity suitable for highways, railroad beds and rural building construction of buildings. The limestone is being quarried and crushed to be scattered on acid soils in the county to sweeten the soil for leguminous crops.

Before prohibition there was numerous distilleries situated on South Licking River because of the limestone qualities of the water.

In former years lime kilns were made by nearly every farmer in the county who made his own lime from the limestone rocks of the surrounding hills.

Clay suitable for common grades of brick are available in the county. The citizens of the county formerly days brick yards weer as numerous as lime kilns.

Mineral waters similar to the well-known Blue Licks may be secured from drilled wells of medium depth. Several springs of the same type are found along the small streams. In the early days when salt was scarce and was selling for $35.00 to $40.00 per barrel the citizens of Butler dug a well about one mile from Butler. They set fire to the gas which rapidly filled the well. When the gas burned out, the water was lifted from the well and boiled down until it made salt.

Another salt well was located at Concord. The water from it was boiled down, the salt barrelled and flatboated down the Kinkaid Creek to the Licking River, then to the Ohio and on to the Mississippi River to New Orleans where it was sold.

Iron ore, coal and marl are found but not in workable beds or veins. Pendleton County soils are very deficient in phosphates which must be supplied by fertilizer of various kinds.

Transportation

The roads in Pendleton County first followed the buffalo and Indian trails up the steep hills to the ridges from which the riders had better points of observation. Some of the roads weer almost impassable during the winter months, even for horse back riding, and that was the way most people traveled in those days. In rainy weather and winter months the mud was so deep that wagons could scarcely be moved even by oxen. The road between Falmouth and Williamstown, Grant County, was often referred to as "Muddy Lane." This was only a fair sample of all the roads since there was very little difference in any of the highways. The roads were generally neglected and the principal upkeep was the working out of poll taxes by reporting for labor on the roads two days in the year. This consisted of merely filling up the chug holes enough to keep the roads passable.

The citizens of Falmouth started the first roads in the county. At their own expense they built two miles of road in three directions which were later turned over to the county. These first roads were turnpikes. Around 1870 the roads were surveyed and different routes taken to eliminate the steep hills of the old Indian trails. Most of these roads were built by subscriptions of the people who owned property along the way. Companies were also formed to help build these roads.

The new road was nearly completed by the summer of 1878. Along about this time the county started donating one thousand dollars per mile for the building of the road in various parts of the county. In 1893 there were one hundred fifty miles of turnpike road in the county with fifty miles more under construction. All the completed roads were controlled by the toll gate system. This system was of short duration because it was found to be unprofitable.

Within the last twenty five years, since the advent of automobiles, the citizens of the county have become more interested in the building of better roads. Macadamized roads have been built which every year are repaired and are resurfaced every two or three years. This has resulted in higher taxes.

At present there are four hundred miles of pike in the county of which the state owns seventy-five miles. With the exception of twenty miles of oiled road and twenty-five miles of concrete all the roads are macadamized. At present the roads are high-type bituminous construction with all curves and treacherous places marked.

The waterways were the first means of transportation of the products of the country to the city markets. Boats and rafts floated down the Licking River to the Ohio, then from that river to the Mississippi, carrying their produce to the markets in New Orleans. Pork, cured at a pork packing plant conducted by A. Robbins at Falmouth, salt and various products of the mills located on the Licking were sent to the markets at Cincinnati, Covington and New Orleans. This was all shipped out when the river was at high tide, the only time when the river was really navigable. At present there is no transportation on the river although the Licking River could be made navigable at all times if it were improved through a system of government owned locks and dams. For a long time the Licking was crossed by fording with horses and oxen of ferrying on flat-boats.

Falmouth had the first bridge which was followed by one at Butler. Both of which were constructed of wood. This was native material and the settlers owned the timber necessary which was hauled in by horses and oxen from the nearby woods to the mills to be sawed into lumber. The bridge at Falmouth was built around 1854 and was of a suspension bridge type. This bridge across the Main Licking River was very insecure and only lasted until 1860. At that time it was replaced by ferry which was used until the early 1870's.

At the County Court in 1868 there was a move made to erect four free bridges in the county, one at Morgan, one at Butler, and two at Falmouth. Six thousand dollars were appropriated for each bridge. Private subscriptions were also being solicited for their construction. At the June term of court an additional amount of one thousand dollars for each bridge was appropriated. The bridges were completed at a total cost of fifty thousand dollars.

On the fourth of June, 1870 a contract was signed to construct the Butler bridge to be finished the first of January 1871. Because of an accident when the fill at the Butler end gave way the bridge was not completed until 1872. This bridge is known as the longest covered wooden bridge in the world. Before the building of the bridge the people from the surrounding country forded the river when it was low and crossed by ferry when it was high. This bridge was condemned by the State Highway Department June 26th, 1934 and is now used for light traffic only until next spring when it is to be replaced by a new structure modern in every detail.

The bridges at Falmouth were completed in the early 70s taking the place of the ferries. The bridge over the Main Licking was accidentally burned in September 1926 and was replaced by a modern concrete bridge in 1928. While this bridge was under construction a ferry was used to carry light traffic across the river. In the last river six years numerous flood bridges have been constructed over small creeks.

The bridge over South Licking has been repaired in the last few years. It was formerly a covered bridge, but now has all the siding removed. The approach tot his bridge on the opposite end form Falmouth made this step very necessary since it has removed all danger of serious accidents.

The Licking River is no longer used for transportation. With the construction of bridges at convenient places and the improved roads, the highways are kept open to travel of private cars and trucks and to the traffic of the bus service.

In 1843 the question of better transportation was the subject of much discussion. A plan ws offered for the building of Kentucky Central Railroad from Covington to Lexington. The County of Pendleton through its officials subscribed fifty thousand dollars of stock in the proposed road, after the State Legislature had granted a charter. The stock ws to be paid in bonds of one thousand dollars each with interest due each year for thirty years. At which time the full amount was to was to be paid. The road was built and the question of paying for the stock was compromised after much litigation.

The Old Kentucky Central Railroad followed a line along the banks of the Licking River beginning at Demossville and continuing through Butler, Catawba, Falmouth and Levingood and Morgan.

The rails were iron and because of heavy freight traffic were often in need of repair. Ties for the tracks were cut from the timber in the county and sold to the agent. At first there were long ties, then the wooden cross ties became popular. The first agent at Falmouth was Ralph Tomlinson, an Englishman, who had clerked for A. Robbins. The first engines were operated by the burning of wood two feet in length. Falmouth was one of the wood and water stations. The water was pumped to the trains by sweep and suction pumps operated by horse power. The railroad bridge was the first bridge in the county having been built in 1854. This bridge was destroyed and a part of the tracks torn up by a party of Rebels in 1862. This damage was immediately repaired.

In 1912 the road was double tracked to Covington from Paris and a new bridge was built. The Kentucky Central Railroad remained for many years the great outlet besides the Licking River for the products of farm and forest, for the transportation of merchandise, for mail and express to and from Pendleton County, and for travel by the new people.

A new day dawned for the transportation of Pendleton County when the Louisville and Nashville Railroad purchased the Kentucky Central and added that to its great railway system which extends into fourteen states and has a modern line of over five thousand miles. Under the present management mail is delivered to four stations, Falmouth, Butler, Demossville, and Morgan, and from these offices sent by rural free delivery to the citizens of the county.

In the early days of Pendleton County, Butler was one of the most important shipping points on the Kentucky Central Railroad. It was then one of the stations, with a roundhouse, for enclosing the engine that drew the Butler Accommodation train to the city in the morning and back in the afternoon.

The Louisville and Nashville runs through the center of the county north and south covering a distance of about twenty four miles.

There is a second railroad on the extreme north eastern corner of the county following the course of the Ohio River. This railroad is the Baltimore and Ohio and the revenue from taxes in the year 1934 was sixteen hundred dollars from it alone.

How to protect your family's skin from summer and all its elements

Afternoons at the pool, family barbecues, outdoor sports and picnics all mean summertime has arrived. With the change in temperature comes additional exposure to the elements and the attendant skin scrapes, bites and burns.

Pharmacy shelves are lined with products to treat these common summer ailments. But with more Americans concerned about using harsh chemicals on their bodies, families are frequently turning to natural alternatives that are just as effective.

To help your family “go natural” in your skin remedies, follow these tips throughout your fun-filled summer.

Bugs

Rather than spraying your yard with products that contain potentially harmful chemicals like DEET and PABA, consider citronella candles. The fragrance should not only keep bugs at bay, but the soft glow sets a pleasant mood for your al fresco meals and parties.

Of course, you can also prevent being bugged all together by avoiding the outdoors during dusk, when mosquitoes come out in full force. But when the outdoors calls, try applying a natural insect repellent.

If you do get bitten, don't scratch. That can promote infection. Instead, apply a cold compress to the bite. It's a tried and true inexpensive path to itch relief.

Sunburn

If your yard lacks shade, improve your eco-footprint and create shade by planting a tree or two. You may not be able to reap the shady benefits this year, but you'll thank yourself in the future. You may also consider building a gazebo or porch overhang for more immediate relief from the sun.

Wear a hat and sunglasses outdoors and apply a sunscreen with broad spectrum UVA/UVB protection.

Spend too long in the sun? Treat yourself to nature's burn relief, Aloe Vera. Look for a gel that is free of parabens and artificial colors and phthalates.

Scrapes

Bike rides, baseball, basketball and trips to the playground all present an opportunity for slips and falls. On such adventures, be sure to carry a small first aid kit so you can clean and cover minor injuries right away.

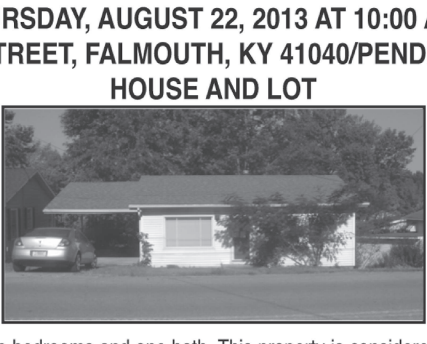

Pack cotton swabs and bandages in a variety of shapes and sizes to be best prepared.

BLANKET CREEK

It was a great day at church! Bro. Joe's text comes from Romans 1:16 "So Great a Salvation." Great in "Concept, Character, Creation, Courage, and Consummation." Conceived- in the mind of God. God is still giving us mercy. Character- the spirit of Christ knows those of us who have a burden because of His virgin birth because of His humble perfect life without sin because of this we were brought His plan of salvation. Creation- Psalms 51:10- David says create in me a clean heart. Christ wants to save us and create a new life in us. Courage- courage that it gives to God's children. Consummation- when Jesus says time is no more salvation will be great to those who possess it. None will avoid the judgment of God if we neglect so great a salvation. It's important to accept Christ into your heart!

This week we added to our families of: The Mee Family.

BUTLER BAPTIST

The Bible says that the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. We have lost the fear of the Lord. Fear means to fear the judgment and to hold in respect. I Peter 1:17-21 tells us that fear is to hold in the highest regard so that we can worship and serve Him. We should do this because we call Him father. Every person in the world will be judged according to their works since salvation. We will be judged without partiality and will be held to the same standards. Since we are on this earth for a short time, our thoughts should be focused on our heavenly home for all eternity. As a Christian we have been redeemed and the world cannot satisfy us. We believe God raised Jesus from the dead and He will raise us also to be with Him. We should want to obey and serve Him daily.

BUTLER METHODIST

While Pastor Davis and family were at a family reunion out of state, many volunteers aided in providing a very uplifting service on Sunday morning. Many thanks to all who had a part in planning and carrying out this service. Especially inspirational were the songs sung in the Hymn Medley.

The Covington District will be holding a Pig Roast on Thursday August 8 at 6:30 p.m. at the Florence UMC.

The Butler Annual Festival will be held September 7, Y'All Come.

We are currently seeking a church secretary, anyone interested please contact Adam Hall.

Those on the sick list and needing prayers this week are, the Bishop family (especially Ruby), Nancy Kyle's co-worker, Lila, Dorothy Taylor, Sharon, Myrtle Lawson, Pam's nephew, Jarrod, Michelle Kohls, Bryant Brown, Randy Bishop and all those we don't know about yet. Praises for Jim and Carol's safe trip, as well as Brenda and Ken, Ross's great birthday, Gary's children are better, and Clay seems to be better. Praise the Lord.

Come worship, sing and praise the Lord with us each Sunday. God Bless!

FALMOUTH CHRISTIAN

It was great having Brother Nathan preach while Rick was on vacation. Brother Nathan's message was from Genesis 3:1-24. "What Happened?" "Why is the world so messed up? God made everything and it was good, but the fall... How does this relate to me? Satan can't get God so we become targets. He is cunning (an enemy to be respected), but not feared. He attacks our mind and casts doubt on God's word (or twists it like he did with Jesus). Unholy thoughts lead to unholy actions...sin, T.V., music, relationships, internet. Our actions affect others-Eve...Adam...us. Gossip...the gossipers, the one who is gossiped about. Sin leads to shame, problems and hinders relationships with others and God. The serpent was cursed... thorn, thistles. Adam and Eve lost paradise for humanity. Sin required payment/sacrifice...But God had a plan...Jesus is the answer, he came to earth, went to calvary in our place, paid our sin debt and reconciles us with our heavenly Father with His blood. So what happened...a lot..., but the best is yet to come! Make sure you are ready!"

Pray for the people in need, in hospitals, in nursing homes, the lost of a love one and the lost. Pray for a Christian Nation and our leaders.

Youth meet every Thursday at 6 p.m. May God bless!

FALMOUTH METHODIST

From time to time, all of us are guilty of putting things off. But some people put off their entire lives! We can always come up with a very good reason for not doing what we really want to do. We use excuses like, "Since there's so much work to do now..." Or, "There's plenty of time to...; but today I'm just too busy." But when tomorrow, next week, or next year comes, chances are we've found other very good reasons to justify procrastination.

Time is too precious to keep putting the important things off until a future time. We only have one opportunity to spend today, and once it's over, it will never come again.

Take a look at the priorities in your life. What are you putting off that you should be attending to now? Make each day count!

GLENWOOD BAPTIST

Our vacation Bible school will be August 5-8, 2013 at 7:00 p.m. nightly. The theme for this year's VBS is "Soldiers of Jesus"; the program honors those who have served our country and encourages others to be good soldiers of Jesus. (2 Timothy 2:3) Everyone is welcome, we are located at 82 Stewart Lane, Falmouth, KY 41040. For more information please call Terry Parnell at 859-620-6033 or Clifford Wade 859-322-2554. We hope to see you there!

MORGAN

Luke 10:38-42. For anyone who thinks the Bible is outdated, please take a look at Martha, Mary, and Jesus. When Martha becomes bitter that no one is helping her, she comes to Jesus and says, "Lord, do you not care that my sister has left me to do all the work? Tell her to help me".

Jesus defends Mary, and tells Martha not to worry about unnecessary things. Martha's distraction keeps her from being with Jesus. She is like so many of us today. We are tempted to measure our worth by how busy we are, how much we accomplish, or how well we meet expectations; feeling pulled in different directions, worried and distracted by many things. But our activities leave no time to be still in God's presence, and hear God's word, and then we're anxious and troubled, devoid of joy in our work, and we resent others. Both listening and doing, receiving God's Word and serving others, are necessary, just as inhaling and exhaling are to breathing. The one thing needed is for Martha to receive the presence of Jesus, to listen to his words, to know that she is valued not for what she does, or how well she does it, but for who she is as a child of God.

"Let us not love with word or with tongue, but in deed and truth."

I John 3:18

MT. CARMEL

It was a true blessing having the opportunity to meet and hear Pastor Monoit share about his work in Haiti.

During VBS the offering taken was given to Pastor Monoit for orphan children his churches take care of. If you would like to make a donation please give it to Lovell Caldwell, MargEl Martin, or Elaine Shafer.

If you would like to know about when the next mission trip we'll be heading to Haiti please see Clay or Cameron.

We will giving out school supplies to the children in Grant and Pendleton counties. If you have any questions please contact Lori Dunn.

We have a new schedule for the Prayer Warriors to sign up on, it is in the connector hall.

MT. MORIAH

Sunday, July 21, was "different" at Mt. Moriah. On Saturday the discovery was made that the air conditioner was not working! With all the windows open and a large fan running it was actually quite comfortable in the sanctuary. Several of us remember the days when there was no air conditioning at Mt. Moriah so it was like the "good old days" for us.

The deacons and elders will resume their visitation and serving of communion to the shut-ins. Please contact us if you know someone who would like our visits.

It was reported that "Little Ellie" is very ill and hospitalized. It is sad to know that a six-year-old child is so sick. Please pray for her.

We offer our sympathy and prayers to Rosalee LaFollette and her family in the loss of their son and brother, Johnny LaFollette.

We congratulate Jackie Thomas for his quick action in helping to catch a group of young men who stole a car with a child asleep inside! Have a great week!

"Let your light shine before men, that they may see your good deeds and praise your Father in Heaven." (Matthew 5:16).

SOUTHSIDE

We opened the morning worship service on July 21, with the hymn, "Leaning on the Everlasting Arms." Brother Clay Sullivan preached the sermon, "Thinking like Jesus," from Colossians 4:1-6. The memory verse for the week is from Colossians 4:2, "Devote yourselves to prayer, being watchful and thankful." Please be in prayer for all in one way or another. Wednesday night Bible study is taking place at 7 p.m. on Wednesday nights. The series is on the "Ten Commandments." Come and worship with us this Sunday: 9 a.m. Sunday school and 10 a.m. worship service.

PLEASANT RIDGE

Happy birthday Doshia Baker and happy 34th wedding anniversary to Doug and Arlene Gosney.

Thanks to all who brought in Tennis Shoes.

What a blessing during VBS. Even though it was hot...hot...hot outside, little hearts were eager inside to learn how to trust Jesus.

Youth group will be going to Southern Lanes in Alexandria for bowling at 6 p.m. on July 31. Adults are welcome too. RSVP... Tracy at (859)322-2872.

A concert with the Patriot Quartet has been scheduled for Saturday October 26 at 5 p.m. Something very strange will happen at 4:15 p.m. on this date also. More details to follow!

Bro. Rick's message was from Philippians 4:8. Fix your thoughts on what is true and good and right. We need to think about things that are pure and dwell on fine and good things in others. God and Satan are in a war to control your mind. Think about all you can praise God for and be glad.

Sunday evening Bible study is in Genesis.

TURNER RIDGE

"All scripture is given by inspiration of God..." 2Timothy 3:16

We have all heard the saying - the only thing to fear, is fear itself, but we still give into that fear.

People today are running in many different directions and are involved in so many activities. The problem is they haven't put God at the center of their busy lives. When they run into fear they look for comfort, and as a result we are seeing that less and less are seeking that comfort from God's word. We desperately need to witness to our community and spread the "Word" that in the darkest times of someone's life, God's word is, "...a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path." Psalm 119:105.

Meet with us Sunday to hear the word of God. Sunday School at 10 a.m. and Worship at 11 a.m.

Who Offers Bible Study for the Pastor?

This seemingly innocent question was nonchalantly asked recently by one of my DMin students. She had journeyed to the Seminary campus this summer with seven other experienced pastors and chaplains for a one-week intensive course on biblical interpretation. We had been working collaboratively as a class on multiple biblical passages, including some difficult ones such as Matthew 25: 31-46, over the course of several days, and the results were evident: a community of interpreters produces rich and fruitful questions and interpretations that are often difficult to match in the solitude of a pastor's study. We needed each other's experiences of the world, the Divine, and the text to enrich our interpretive frameworks, and develop our ponderings. We also needed the freedom to not know, to not have the answer, to struggle with the text. So, the pastor-student wondered aloud for an instant about the feasibility of creating such a life-giving, communal experience among the clergy in her hometown. She wanted more partners, not parishioners, for Bible study.

As a seminary professor and biblical scholar, I encourage my students to seek out and develop relationships with fellow clergy women and men as they journey beyond seminary into vocational ministry. These groups of clergy, particularly when they include a diversity of traditions, ages, and experiences, can provide immense support to ministers as they create a space for naming hopes and despairs, failures and successes. But, these groups, I think, can also push themselves beyond a monthly therapeutic session over breakfast (as much as that is sometimes needed!). What might happen to these clergy gatherings if they are transformed, at least sometimes, into communities of biblical interpreters? What if my student received her wish and participated regularly in Bible studies for pastors?

Indeed there are unique advantages to communal practices of interpretation. We are all mostly too comfortable in our experiences and perceptions of the world to stretch naturally toward new readings of sacred texts. We are often too busy protecting our hard-won interpretations. We feel pressure to have practical, straightforward answers for church folks. The Minister-as-Bible-Expert persona is eternally tempting. Yet, reading the Bible as a community begins to chip away at all these tendencies as we become more aware of the complexities of emotions and experiences gathered in the community. Reading in community allows us to nurture, to share, and to listen for the distinctive ways in which our lives intersect with Scripture. Studying the Bible together with other clergy could help us listen better to the Spirit of Wisdom as she blows through the lives of our colleagues as they take up the Bible and voice their understandings.

Be forewarned though: reading in community, reading with other clergy, destabilizes traditional models of learning and prevailing power dynamics. Reading is power. It calls forth and honors the many voices present in the gathering. Of course, that type of Bible study just might be exactly what is needed in order to attend to the many voices present in our sacred stories.

Editor's note: Michael Jenkins is taking his summer break from Thinking Out Loud. In his absence, we are fortunate to have several guest bloggers who have accepted the invitation to write for the blog. Look for posts by Seminary Trustee Morgan Roberts, Tasha Blackburn, Abbi Long and others!

Chicken Garden Bake recipe by The Amish Cook

The Amish Cook
By: Lovina Eicher

It sure feels good to finally sit down and prop up my feet in front of a fan after a shower. It has been hot and humid this week. We have been trying to shade the windows from the sun. We have a wrap-around porch towards the east and south which provides some shade. It's when the sun shines from the west that we feel the heat. In the house we pull the shades to block out the sun until the sun goes down. We use battery-powered fans but it seems on hot days like this they just blow the warm air around. Growing up at home we didn't have any fans. In Dad's later years he finally bought a small battery-powered square fan to help him get through hay fever season.

My husband Joe and sons Benjamin, 14, and Joseph, 10, with the help of the neighbors put 400 bales of hay in our barn this week that we bought from the neighbors. Plans are to get our hay cut this week yet. Joe doesn't think we will have enough as we put one field into beans this year. Putting up hay is a very hot job in this weather.

Susan, 17, Verena, 15, and Benjamin are detasseling corn which is also a very hot job. The factories that Joe and Elizabeth, 19, work in do not have air conditioning so they get pretty warm on days like these.

The young children have been staying cool by filling tubs of water and then having a water battle. Those are always fun and sometimes everyone joins in.

I canned Seranno peppers this week. Today I need to can pickles. Joe picked two five-gallon size buckets of cucumbers. We are having tomatoes and lots of zucchini to add to our menus. I also canned black raspberry freezer jam with berries Timothy has on his property.

Benjamin had a nice 14th birthday on Sunday. I made a chocolate cake and decorated it for him. We didn't do anything special for our 20th anniversary on the 15th. Where have these years gone?

It is only 8 a.m. and the sun feels warm already. Joseph and I watered the gardens with the sprinkler. The hose wouldn't reach the one corner so we watered that with buckets. It's time consuming but it is dry and needs rain. The Good Lord will provide. We have so much to be thankful for. Do we appreciate the many blessings we have? Let us thank God daily for our blessings!

Laundry is also on our list to do today so I'll sign off wishing all of you readers God's many blessings.

Try this recipe with your fresh garden goodies.

Monument planned for Wesley Chapel Cemetery

Contributions to building fund welcomed

By Roger McKinney, Reporter

The March 2012 Tornado that devastated areas of Northern Pendleton County almost completely destroyed a small church close to Peach Grove called Wesley Chapel. Only a rectangular slab of concrete that served as the structure's foundation was undisturbed. This house of worship was first constructed in 1837. It was rebuilt in 1856, 19 years later. Wesley Chapel stood about one mile and a quarter from Peach Grove on Route 10, just over the Pendleton/Campbell County Line. The full name of this historical building was Wesley Chapel Methodist Episcopal South.

Shortly after its construction in 1837 the chapel's minister began to perform funeral services. Deceased members of the congregation were laid to rest in the nearby churchyard. At present some 500 grave sites make up the Wesley Chapel Cemetery. In 1993 because of declining membership the Methodist Conference closed the chapel and its surviving members began to attend larger churches elsewhere. Nineteen years later a powerful tornado tore the chapel to pieces. Thankfully, the church's bell and a commemorative plaque were recovered from the ruins.

The Wesley Chapel Cemetery Board of Directors is planning to construct a monument on the church's foundation in memory of the chapel's congregations that span 176 years. A funding drive has been initiated. If anyone wishes to contribute to the Wesley Chapel Memorial Fund they may do so by visiting or mailing their donation to the PNC Bank at 8210 East Main Street Alexandria, Kentucky 41001. All donations are tax deductible and greatly appreciated.

Girl Scouts camping experience fun and educational

Many Pendleton County Girl Scouts attended the Campboree at Camp Whippoorwill at A.J. Jolly Park in June. The girls learned about first aid and safety in the outdoors. After a campfire, s'mores and overnight in tents, the girls learned about bugs and enjoyed collecting their own to take home. They then made their own personal first aid kits and had a water balloon fight. If you are interested in becoming a Girl Scout, or would like to become a Girl Scout leader, please contact Jennifer at (859) 391-4737. Look for our booths at the Good Start and Ready Fest events.

Eye exam required for children entering school

Parents will soon be busy making their back-to-school lists. School supplies and new clothes may be at the top of those lists, but an eye exam should be included as well.

State law requires that children ages 3 through 6 who are entering a public school or preschool program for the first time have a vision exam.

"Studies show that vision problems are a major factor in limiting children's abilities to learn and succeed," said Dr. Tonia Batts, an optometrist in Mayfield, Ky. "Having children's eyes examined is one of the most important things parents can do to support their children's education and good health."

Up to 13 percent of children age 5 and younger have some type of vision condition. After age 5, that number increases to 25 percent.

"We encourage all parents to have their children's eyes examined because many problems may not be obvious to them or their children's teachers," Batts said. "Young children don't realize that the way they see the world may not be the way it should be. Early diagnosis and treatment can prevent loss of sight from amblyopia, which is commonly called lazy eye. Unfortunately, one-half of all cases of amblyopia are not diagnosed until after age 5, when it is difficult to correct."

Amblyopia is the leading cause of vision loss in people under age 40 -- more than injuries or any other disease. However, it is almost 100 percent treatable if detected early.

Batts also said an eye examination is particularly important if your child exhibits any of these signs of possible eye problems:

- Loses place while reading, holds the book closer than normal or uses his finger to maintain his place while reading.

- Avoids close work.
- Tends to rub her eyes.
- Complaints of frequent headaches.

- Turns or tilts his head, or squints, to use only one eye.
- Omits or confuses small words when reading aloud.

- Consistently performs below academic potential.

Many private insurance plans, Medicaid and KCHIP cover these services. Private programs also are available to help families meet these expenses, such as the Kentucky Vision Project, which is sponsored by the Kentucky Optometric Association and has donated millions of dollars in vision care. Sight for Students and the Lion's Club are other programs that can help.

To find an optometrist in your area, please visit www.kyeyes.org.

Helen's Heirlooms to re-open Aug. 1

Ruth Brandenburg of Falmouth is re-opening her quaint little shop Helen's Heirlooms at 313 Main Street in Falmouth on August 1.

If you are an antique shopper you will have lots of items to look at. Even if you aren't there are plenty of other items to catch your eye. There are all kinds of dishes, a doll collection, old necklaces, brooch pins, other jewelry and several Christmas pins on display.

She has lots of Christmas items such as ornaments, manger scenes and furniture.

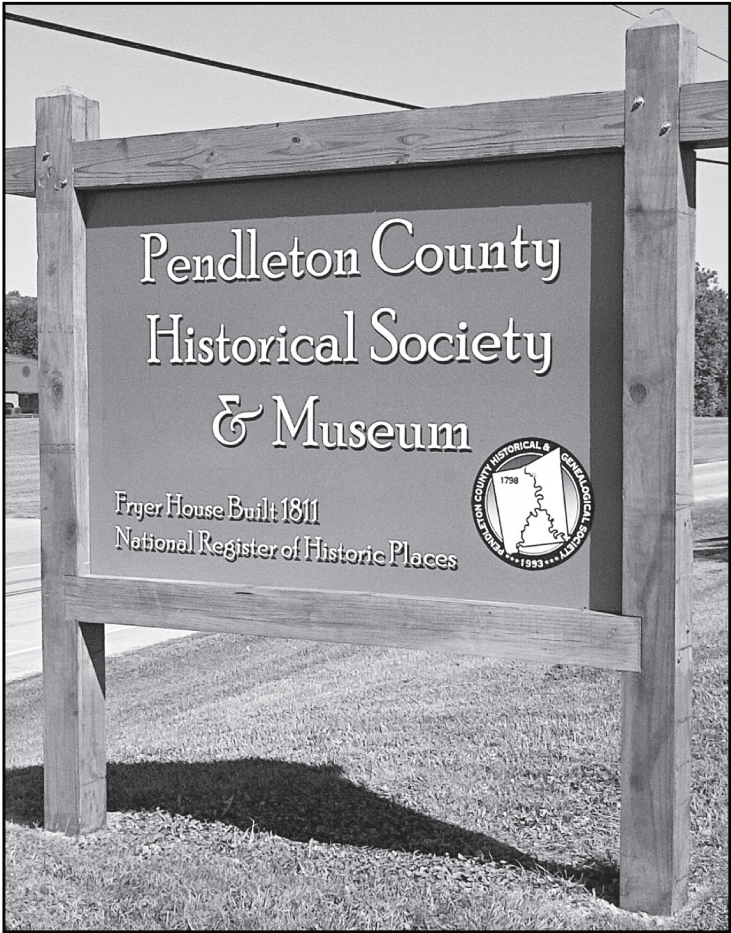

The shop hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Historical Society has new visibility

The new sign pictured above was completed just in time for the July meeting of Pendleton County Historical & Genealogical Society. The men who worked so hard to give Bethel Church back to the community as a historic site have completed construction and installation of this new sign at the Fryer House National Historic Site in Butler. Those men were Frank Hussung, Billie Newman and Charlie Pyles with additional support from Obie Fardo. Stop by and visit Fryer House any first Tuesday from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. when volunteers keep it open for visitors and researchers. There will be an "open" sign posted any time volunteers are at the house to welcome visitors. Regular meetings are the third Saturday of every month at 11 a.m. Fryer House is located on the northeast corner at the intersection of KY 177 and U.S. 27 in Butler across from Northern Elementary School. Plenty of free parking is available.
